Craigallian

This description of the location is taken from <http://www.travel-lite-uk.com/milngavie.htm> "The West Highland Way leaves Milngavie town centre by a walkway over the stream, then you are in a leafy lane which used to be an old railway line. Walk along the Allander water and after a short time you will come to a sign which takes you up to the right to the higher ground of Mugdock wood. The walking at this stage is nice and easy, with a well defined track, which used to be an old carriageway to Craigallion House. In 1860 'Rambles Round Glasgow' described a gigantic yew in the grounds of Craigallian House.
