

1998: The male yew, which grows east of the church, has split into 3 sections. Some of the wires stretched around the branches to help prevent further separation no longer serve any purpose and could be removed. Nails hammered into the lower bole appear to have once held in place a barrier preventing access to the large space. Girth was approximately 21' at 1'.

Tim Hills 1998

Geoff Garlick 2006