

This male yew grows east of the church. Its bole sweeps upwards above its cavernous hollow, with larger branches emerging from 10/15'. The photos show that between 1999 and 2007 all lower growth was removed from the tree.

Girth was recorded by J.Daryll Evans in 1986 as 610cm (20' ) at 1m. I included the piece of stump seen at (A) and recorded 21' 8" in 1999 and 21' 10" in 2007.

There are a further four younger yews in the churchyard, one with a girth above 12' .
