

In The King's England 1939 Mee described 'a grand old yew 15' round its trunk'.

In 2003 I recorded girths of 16' 6" close to the ground and 16' 11" at 3'. One 2' 6" section of its bole is dead but living wood closes over this by a height of 8'. The male yew grows NE of the church and had to share its space with an oil storage tank and several 45 gallon drums.

In 2018 Paul Wood reported a tree in good condition with a girth of 5.20m (17' 1") at 3'.
