

2002: This healthy female yew grows WNW of the church. From its open centre radiate a profusion of live and dead branches, with many split and jagged edges. I taped above the undercut base and included the substantial fallen branch which formed at the edge of the bole; the result was 23' 5".

