

In 1903 Woolhope Transactions described 'the fine old symmetrically grown yew tree in the southern part of the churchyard, with a solid bole about ten feet high before the forking into huge branches'. Girth was given as 18' at 5' from the ground.

In the 1938 King's England Mee described a 'splendid yew with a trunk 20ft round growing by the church'.

In 1998 I recorded the female yew with a girth of about 19' in this raised and semi-circular churchyard.

Photos: Geoff Garlick 2008

1998 Tim Hills

